Ammonite

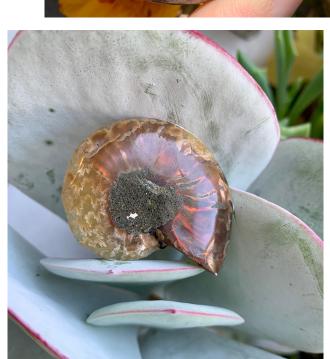

We recently acquired a large quantity of beautiful & iridescent fossilized Ammonites from Madagascar!

Now extinct, the Ammonite mollusk was a shelled cephalopod. The extinction of Ammonites coincided with the extinction of the dinosaurs, making their fossils approximately 145 million years old. Ammonites are root chakra stones of protection and grounding that help us gain insight and see the 'whole picture.' Their fossils usually appear as coiled, spiral shapes.

We have smaller cross sections of Ammonite as well as larger 'Red Flash' Ammonites. Both varieties are polished. The iridescent colors are a result of nacre, the substance that once made up the ammonite's shell, fossilizing and becoming the mineral Aragonite.

Carnelian

We are happy to announce the arrival of Carnelian Hearts and Spheres alongside our regular assortment of tumbled Carnelian palm stones. Carnelian is a fiery orange variety of Chalcedony that inspires creativity and confidence. It is an excellent stone for opening and balancing the Sacral chakra. Carnelian often has visible geode like cavities due to its natural growth patterns.

Double Terminated Discoveries

Once upon a time, a group of brilliant and unique double terminated quartz was hidden away beneath a box of clear quartz spheres... But no longer! Pieces like the cluster on the left will now be on out on display. Double terminated Quartz is used to channel energy between two points.
